NEELY APPOINTED TO RESERVE POST

Department Store Executive Named Board Member of Branch in Atlanta

Frank H. Neely, secretary and general manager of Rich's, Inc., yesterday was appointed a member of the board of directors of the Atlanta Federal Reserve Bank.

Mr. Neely will fill the unexpired term of H. Warner Martin, of Atlanta, recently resigned, officials in Washington revealed yesterday.

Mr. Martin's term expires December 31, 1938. Other members of the board are J. P. Allen, of Atlanta, and W. H. Kettig, of Birmingham.

This nation's recognized and honored citizen, first president to one of Atlanta's citizens, who has given largely of his time in behalf of his city and state.

Board Set-Up.

He will now serve as one of the nine directors. They are divided into groups of three, the first two groups of which must be composed of men with banking experience. The third group, of which he will become a member, is composed of business men with wide experience in civic and business affairs.

Under the new Federal Reserve System law, the President of the United States appoints seven men to compose the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System.

The Class A group of district governors is elected and must be men with banking experience. They are selected from large banking institutions. Those in Group B must be elected and are selected from the smaller banking institutions. The C group is composed of three business men who are appointed by the Federal Reserve Board in Washington.

They returned in about an hour and the doctor was asked if there were any developments in the abduction of Charles Sunday night.

"I have nothing to say—not a thing," he declared.

Details Unknown.

Details of the pair could not be learned. Little information was obtained about movements of several other persons, including two possible intermediaries, who arrived at or left the Mattson residence during the day.

A source close to the family said the two persons were offered by reports $50,000 and $100,000 by friends to win Charles' release from the abductor who flew a $28,000 ransom note in the home Sunday night as he made off with the boy in the presence of his brother, sister and a girl guest.

Mr. Mattson was reported to have been Atlanta in many capacities. In 1926 he was a member of the bonding commission which built viaducts and other improvements in Atlanta.

He served for three years as chairman of the Atlanta Community Chest.

GARRISON URGES CHANGES IN LAWS

Extension of Judicial Power Danger to Nation, Richberg Declares.

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—(P)—Broad amendments to the constitution to enable congress to meet changing economic conditions with adequate legislation were advocated today by Lloyd Garrison, doer of the University of Wisconsin Law school, and former chairman of the National Labor Relations Board.

He spoke with Donald R. Richberg, former administrator of the NRA, at a meeting sponsored jointly by the American Political Science Association and the American Association for Labor Legislation.

Among his proposals was an amendment giving congress the power to promote the economic welfare of the country by laws enacted in such manner that states would be able to fill them in with state legislation and administer them in whole or in part.

Richberg said the greatest danger to American government in the last two years was arising from "unconstitutional extensions of judicial power."

Our entire scheme of government depends on maintaining the integrity and supremacy of the legislative authority exercised by the elected representatives within the field of power which has been granted to them by the constitution," he declared.

CLEARING SKIES SEEN

Clearing skies and colder temperature are the weatherman's promise for the New Year.

The clearing process will start today, he announced yesterday, but it is doubtful if the sun will make a determined appearance, until tomorrow.

Temperatures this morning are expected to start in the lower fifties and do little climbing, if any, during the day. The initial temperature will drop to lower levels than they have averaged during the last few days but no freezing weather is in sight.

and had as many successful administrations.

Before the present administration took over relief, Mr. Neely served as chairman and organized the unemployment relief in Atlanta.

He is a member of the Public Welfare Board, of the American Society of Chemical Engineers; and vice president of the southern district and a national director of the National Re-tally Drygoods Association.

Georgian by Birth.

The newly-appointed member of the nation's financial directing board is a Georgian. He was born in Augusta January 14, 1884. One of the things of which he is proudest is that his birthday happened to coincide with that of General Robert E. Lee.

His family early moved to Rome,
Ga., where his father, Benjamin Neely, founded the public school system of Rome, and of Floyd county. He had the unique distinction of having been educated in schools founded by his father.

Following his public school education,
he was graduated from Georgia Tech
in the class of 1904 with the degree of civil engineering.

He entered business in Pittsburgh
and specialized in office management.
He later returned to Atlanta and for 12 years was manager of all the branches of the Fulton Bag and Cotton mills in charge of labor and production. His success there led to his being employed by Rich's, Inc., as secretary and general manager.

Declined Comment.

Mr. Neely expressed himself yesterday as being happy to serve. He withheld comment until official announcement is made from Washington.

No Disclosure Made.

"No one will disclose where or when or how the cache was discovered,"
the Record said.

"Neither is it known whether the
'kidnappers' to be named by Hoffman will include Paul H. Wendell, Trenton lawyer, who made a fake confession of the kidnapping and then retracted, saying he was tortured into confessing.

Of an affable and genial disposition, the new reserve bank director has a host of friends here.

His hobby is farming. He was one of the first Atlanta business men to purchase a farm near the city and to carry on practical and helpful agricultural experiments. He has added experiments in dairying and has a fine herd of blooded cattle on his farm.

Collector of Medals.

His secondary hobby is the collection of medals commemorating some special event in a nation's life. He has a collection from most of the nations in the world, some of them very old and quite valuable.

His sports recreation is attending football games and cheering his Alma Mater's team.

APPOINTMENT REVEALED
IN NATIONAL CAPITAL.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—Appointment of Frank Neely, of Atlanta,
well-known businessman and department store operator, as a Class C director of the board of the Atlanta Federal Reserve bank, was revealed today by officials.

Mr. Neely, president and general manager of Rich's, Inc., was named to the vacancy caused by the recent resignation of H. Warner Martin, of Atlanta, who has been serving as chairman of the board.

While official announcement of the Atlanta man's appointment is being held in Atlanta, Rich's has him here pending the completion of a number of similar appointments throughout the country. It was admitted by board members that his acceptance of the post has been received.

Board Member Silent.

Because of the confidential character of the announcement as yet, board members here had no formal comment, but privately it was made known they are highly pleased with Mr. Neely's acceptance.

Class C directors of the several Federal Reserve banks are selected by the Federal Reserve Board in Washington and serve without pay. Appointed for a term of three years, they are named to represent the public interest in affairs of the Federal Reserve bank.

It was emphasized in behalf of the board that political considerations enter into the selection of the officials, always made to obtain men of broad vision and an open mind on business and economic problems. Another requirement is that the person selected shall be active in his business relationships.

Mr. Neely's appointment was described as a happy sequence to Mr.
Martin's resignation, which was regretted very much at the time. There have been reports that the latter planned to accept some other high office with the Roosevelt administration in Washington, but no confirmation of this has been forthcoming from the officials' quarters yet. Mr. Martin was associated in an official capacity with the late Eugene Black, of Atlanta, when he served as governor of the Federal Reserve System.

Other Board Members.

Serving with Mr. Neely as a class
C director of the Atlanta Federal Reserve Bank will be W. P. Allen of Atlanta, and W. H. Kettig, of Birmingham.

Mr. Allen's term expires shortly, but it is understood he has indicated
a willingness to continue on.

Although there are nine directors of the board, the chairman is selected from the Class C directors, which means that a new chairman will be named now that the Martin vacancy has been filled. Officials here had no idea as to which of the three will be chosen.

Mr. Neely, one of the most successful department store executives in the country, well known in Washington, where he has come on official missions
frequently in connection with projects of interest to the state. Only recently he accompanied Governor-elect Rivers here on a round of conferences with cabinet officers and administration heads preliminary to the new state administration in Georgia.

the horse had Jackson died without regaining consciousness.

Miss Joyce talked with Dupuy but was too upset to recall the details of the accident, beyond the fact that she vaguely remembered both Jackson and the driver of the sleigh standing up and attempting to halt the runaway horse.

She said the sleigh began sliding against the horse's heels two kilometers before they rounded the curve
where the crash occurred.

The driver is known as one of the best at St. Moritz. He said he would use the canton of Grisons for failing to maintain sufficient snow on the road to insure safety.

Dupuy, after several hours' effort,
finally located Jackson's brother, Derek, tonight at the hotel Bristol in Venice. Funeral arrangements will be made when he arrives here.

For the first time in a long series of romances over a 25-year period,
death stopped a marriage of Peggy Upton-Archer-Hopkins-Joyce-Morner.

The 45-year-old Peggy first was married to David Archer, a Denver businessman, in 1912. The marriage lasted six months.

In 1913 she eloped with Sherburne
Philbrick Hopkins Jr., a wealthy Washington lawyer. That marriage lasted two years.

In 1919 she met J. Stanley Joyce,
Chicago lumber millionaire.

"He proposed the first night he met me," Peggy said. They were divorced in 1920.

Then she met Count Costa Morner
of Moreland, a Chicago tooth paste manufacturer. Peggy was then playing in the 'Vanities' and the nobleman's coming was so ardent they were married in Atlantic City in June, 1924. Peggy got her divorce from him in Paris in 1925.

After every marriage always Peggy said, "Never again."

Since 1925 Peggy has not been married but her name has been linked with Ray Gerts, producer; Jacob L.
Derbyshire, author; and Frank L.
Lord Davis, Earl of Northesk.

A few years ago Miss Joyce wrote a book called "Men, Marriage and Me."

Colonel Lindbergh's first son, Charles Jr., was kidnaped from the family home at Hopewell, N. J., on March 1, 1932. A month later $50, 000 ransom was paid by Dr. John F.
(Jasie) Condon to a man who he later said was Hauptmann.

No Disclosure Made.

the Record said.

"It is known, however, that Hauptmann, was very close to the investigation. Recently she has visited Trenton as many as three and four times in a week, accompanied by a New York lawyer and a private de-

"Not so long ago she said Governor Hoffman was about to make a statement in the case which would
'starle the world.'"

NO BASIS FOR REPORT

KNOWN TO KIMBERLING

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 30.—(UP)—
Colonel Lindbergh's son, Charles Jr., was kidnaped from the family home at Hopewell, N. J., on March 1, 1932. A month later $50,000 ransom was paid by Colonel Lindbergh to Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

An official report of all Haupt-mann's financial activities issued May 1, 1936, by the Federal Bureau of Internal Revenue, showed that he had known assets of $1,000,000 before the ransom payment and afterwards assets of $49,050.44 which was believed to be the ransom money.

At the time of his capture, September 19, 1934, Hauptmann had the following assets: Mortgages—$7,500;
stocks and brokerage account balances
$8,781.12; Mutual Fund—$1,000; Trust Company stock—$80.25; cash in bank
$2,888.65; investments in firms—$5,
500; 400 Hudson seals in house—
$1,100; gold coins in house—$120,
and ransom bills in garage—$14,600.

From the time the ransom was paid,
April 2, 1932, until his capture,
Hauptmann spent $15,500,000, including a $3,000 loan to a stock broker, $700
for a license, $300 for a trip to Germany for Mrs. Hauptmann and $120 for beer glasses.

money, without it going through the auditor's office.

The $144,000 in question is the amount due the Highway Department on advances it made to the Military Department last year when the latter was engaged in strike duty following disturbances in the textile areas. The Governor said yesterday that the money had been paid back some time ago but Wisdom's action yesterday revealed he did not approve of the method of payment.

Highway Department officials decided to reveal why they desire to have the entire amount in the highway treasury immediately. If an unused fund is not drawn within six months after the close of a given year it au-tomatically lapses into the general fund, but even though it stayed in the treasury it could not be touched for any other than highway purposes
before July 1.

The Highway Board yesterday divided its attention on the cash withdrawal and an effort to set aside an injunction order issued Tuesday by Superior Judge J. H. Hawkins at Macon. The injunction, which $500,000 contract letting was halted, Chairman Wilburn held several conferences with officials of the Department of Law, and it was reported the board will ask another superior court judge to hear the case prior to the January 14 date fixed by Judge Hawkins. The Ma-crawilla jurist has announced he will be on his circuit on vacation until January 14. Under the law another judge may take up the case in his absence.

Of the projects halted by the injunction, $150,000 worth are in Macon county, the home county of Chairman Wilburn. The injunction was handed down after a number of citizens of the tenth congressional district petitioned that their district be obtained and have not been given a fair distribution of highway money under the present administration.

The January 14 date fixed by Judge Hawkins is two days after the inauguration of Governor Rivers, who is expected to take steps to reorganize the Highway Department immediately after taking his office.

SINGLE PENSION FUND, RETIREMENT REFORMS TO BE ASKED BY COUCH

Proposal for Revised Set-Up for Police, Firemen and Others Planned.

Centralization of the city's three pension systems under one pension fund with a top pension of $60 a month will be proposed in council Monday by Councilman W. Allen Couch, it was announced yesterday.

The councilman said his proposal, "undertaken to preserve the pension system," will follow in a general way the social security act.

At present, the city has a police pension, firemen's pension and a general pension under which school and non-school employees come. The police pension is $60 a month, firemen's $75, while general employees draw half pay upon retirement.

Couch said he will move to revise the charter through legislative amendment to provide one pension fund to which all employees would contribute 3 per cent of their salary. This city would contribute a like amount and pensions, which could not be drawn until the age of 65, would range from a minimum of $20 a month to $60 a month, according to pay.

Many other avenues, however, were left open for the kidnapper to contact the family, federal agents calling a "true" in interest of the child's safety.

Lieutenant Colonel Gus B. Appelman, whose "family" of the kidnapped boy's father, sped from the Mattson home on an undisclosed mission after a 40-minute conference with the family.

Nothing Significant.

An hour later Appelman appeared at the police and asserted he had gone there directly from the Mattson home, a distance of only four miles.

"Couldn't say there was anything significant," he told questioners. "No, I guess that's all."

Appelman, an arms reserve lieutenant colonel, was mentioned frequently as the principal intermediary.

The classified advertisement, appearing yesterday, said:

"Mable—Please give us your address, Ann."

The Times said it was inserted by a middle-aged woman who paid cash and gave no name or address.

Colonel Appelman dashed away. John S. Stripland, private detective and friend of the boy's father, Dr. W. W. Mattson, also left the home but refused to disclose his destination.

Then Dr. Mattson, reported to have raised the demand for $28,000 ransom "in his own way," left his home silently in a car driven by his son, William. They returned soon.

Send "Anyone."

One source disclosed the crudely printed ransom note, signed "Tim," specified the $28,000 should be delivered in a model of automobile which had not been manufactured for years, and that the family could send "anything."

This informant also said the note warned that the ransom demand would be doubled unless the $28,000 is paid by Sunday.

A spot that figured prominently in the kidnap killing of little George Verner came into the Mattson home today when peace officers rushed to a house at Issaquah to check the owner's report that someone had broken into the place and stolen a mattress.

The house is near the place young W. W. Mattson was released after his father paid a $200,000 ransom. It is 12 miles out of Tacoma.

Police investigated the story of a young man and woman who reported they saw an automobile repeatedly passing the Mattson home during the night. The man, the swarthy, horned abductor, smashed his way into the house with a pistol and carried off the 10-year-old boy before the eyes of three other horrified children.

"OMNIBUS" TAX FIGHT.

FRANKFORT, Dec. 30.—(UPI) An effort to have the "omnibus" tax bill repealed caused the senate of the Kentucky general assembly to adjourn today until next Monday afternoon despite expressed fears of some senators that such action was illegal.

It was evident some time ago that the first move of the new administration would be to attack Poole and that efforts to dismiss T. O. Stewart as chief would follow. Should other means fail, the administration could resort to the legislature to remove Sturdivant. Or both could be cited to stand physical examinations. Poole is now confined with illness.

A source in authority said Hartfield, who has been running the city with less than three members of general council on it. A new ordinance passed recently makes the mayor an ex-officio member of all committees.

Star Chamber Session.

Hartfield will entertain all 18 members of the council at a dinner at 6 o'clock tomorrow night at the Andley hotel and all outsiders, including newspapermen, are to be excluded from this star chamber session. He will map some of his plans to the councilmen and will ask their suggestions and co-operation. The meeting, the first of the new council, is expected to be of importance in determining the future policy of the new administration.

The pension board is scheduled to meet January 12 to give consideration to Melton's application for pension and Bridges will appear to ask that not be granted.

Melton had 25 years' service when he was suspended last spring. He was reinstated after Ben T. Hiner, public service commissioner, and Paul Carpenter, lawyer, appeared before the committee in his behalf. He said he did not want to go to work, but only when he reinstated so he could get his pension of $60 a month. Alderman Frank H. Reynolds, chairman, and Alderman John W. Ball and Councilman W. M. Sutton voted in his favor. Councilmen Howard Haire and Cecil Hester opposed the move.

Chancery again attacked Sturdivant for tampering and abusing workers at the Chevrolet plant during a strike. He is scheduled to be tried with the new police committee early in January, according to Joe Jacobs, representing labor leaders.

Comptroller West was empowered to strike from appropriations every item except that which he considers necessary to the operation of the city and to attain a balance by cutting salaries whatever amount will be needed to bring appropriations to anticipations.

Initial Estimates.

Appropriations in West's first tentative budget exceeded the anticipated revenue by $551,000 by $663,000, including $21,000 for a new police department. Pay reductions for city employees would be based on the basic pay and not on the amount workers are receiving.

KIDNAPER'S DEMAND SENT TO PARENTS

TACOMA, Wash., Dec. 30.—(UPI) Note left by the kidnaper of Charles Mattson, 10:

"The price is $28,000: $10,000 in fives and tens; $18,000 in 50s and 100s. Bills, please. No news ones. Put ad in Seattle Times personal column to read: 'Mable—please give us your address—Tim. Put this ad in Times, no other paper. If no answer from you within a week, price goes up double and double and double that each week after that. Don't fail and I won't. The boy is safe. (Signed) 'TIM.'

KIDNAPING 'PAY-OFF' IS EXPECTED SHORTLY

Seeva, general manager of the Mount Rainier National Park Company.

First steps in the negotiations were begun by the family with the insertion of a classified advertisement in the Seattle Times in compliance with instructions in the note. No answer that could be identified appeared in the newspaper today.

Many other avenues, however, were left open for the kidnapper to contact the family, federal agents calling a "true" in interest of the child's safety.

Lieutenant Colonel Gus B. Appelman, whose "family" of the kidnapped boy's father, sped from the Mattson home on an undisclosed mission after a 40-minute conference with the family.

Nothing Significant.

An hour later Appelman appeared at the police and asserted he had gone there directly from the Mattson home, a distance of only four miles.

"Couldn't say there was anything significant," he told questioners. "No, I guess that's all."

Appelman, an arms reserve lieutenant colonel, was mentioned frequently as the principal intermediary.

The classified advertisement, appearing yesterday, said:

"Mable—Please give us your address, Ann."

The Times said it was inserted by a middle-aged woman who paid cash and gave no name or address.

Colonel Appelman dashed away. John S. Stripland, private detective and friend of the boy's father, Dr. W. W. Mattson, also left the home but refused to disclose his destination.

Then Dr. Mattson, reported to have raised the demand for $28,000 ransom "in his own way," left his home silently in a car driven by his son, William. They returned soon.

Send "Anyone."

One source disclosed the crudely printed ransom note, signed "Tim," specified the $28,000 should be delivered in a model of automobile which had not been manufactured for years, and that the family could send "anything."

This informant also said the note warned that the ransom demand would be doubled unless the $28,000 is paid by Sunday.

A spot that figured prominently in the kidnap killing of little George Verner came into the Mattson home today when peace officers rushed to a house at Issaquah to check the owner's report that someone had broken into the place and stolen a mattress.

The house is near the place young W. W. Mattson was released after his father paid a $200,000 ransom. It is 12 miles out of Tacoma.

Police investigated the story of a young man and woman who reported they saw an automobile repeatedly passing the Mattson home during the night. The man, the swarthy, horned abductor, smashed his way into the house with a pistol and carried off the 10-year-old boy before the eyes of three other horrified children.

"OMNIBUS" TAX FIGHT.

FRANKFORT, Dec. 30.—(UPI) An effort to have the "omnibus" tax bill repealed caused the senate of the Kentucky general assembly to adjourn today until next Monday afternoon despite expressed fears of some senators that such action was illegal.

It was evident some time ago that the first move of the new administration would be to attack Poole and that efforts to dismiss T. O. Stewart as chief would follow. Should other means fail, the administration could resort to the legislature to remove Sturdivant. Or both could be cited to stand physical examinations. Poole is now confined with illness.

A source in authority said Hartfield, who has been running the city with less than three members of general council on it. A new ordinance passed recently makes the mayor an ex-officio member of all committees.

Star Chamber Session.

Hartfield will entertain all 18 members of the council at a dinner at 6 o'clock tomorrow night at the Andley hotel and all outsiders, including newspapermen, are to be excluded from this star chamber session. He will map some of his plans to the councilmen and will ask their suggestions and co-operation. The meeting, the first of the new council, is expected to be of importance in determining the future policy of the new administration.

The pension board is scheduled to meet January 12 to give consideration to Melton's application for pension and Bridges will appear to ask that not be granted.

"Morning After" Headache Eased In A Hurry

Over-indulgence often results in a full "morning after" headache; up-set nerves and an "all up in" feeling. When you wake up like this, let "BC" lend a helping hand.

The quick-acting ingredients in the "BC" formula will relieve headache and neuralgia pains of an inorganic character, and greatly aid you in snapping back into your stride. Remember this: Keep a package of "BC" handy. Convenient 10c and 25c sizes, or by the dose at fountains. (adv.)

discussing the project. Several telephone calls came to Constitution executives concerning the awards, and all indicated they will strive to place their respective counties in the fore before the time for judging counties arrives.

A lengthy editorial appeared in the Savannah Morning News citing the fact that Chatman county commissioners and citizens have an opportunity to win a $3,000 first award.

In addition, the editorial was complimentary to The Constitution and ended with the following comment:

"The contest should act as a spur to every citizen, as well as county officials, to display renewed zeal in the study of county government affairs, with the certain prospect that Georgia as a whole will be benefited immensely and lastingly."

Chattanooga Watching.
J. Charles Poe, executive editor of the Chattanooga Times, wrote Major Howell as follows:

"Allow me to compliment you most highly on your county government contest. It is a subject in which I have been deeply interested and I shall watch the progress of the idea with great interest."

Thus in Georgia and other parts of the nation, The Constitution Progressive Government Awards are stimulating interest. The interest will be continued. It will last.

The awards present to Georgia an opportunity to march in the forefront of other states of the nation. The Empire State of the South has an opportunity to step forward with the best county governments of America and win a place for itself as the Empire State of the Union.

National Interest.

At the time of the Constitution Progressive Government Awards for 1937 are news. They are attracting not only state and south-wide interest but news publications in many parts of the nation are carrying stories concerning the undertaking. People from other states want to see just what can and will be done toward progress and improvement in Georgia's 159 county governments.

A total of $7,500 will be awarded to 13 county governments making improvements which bring the greatest benefits to their citizens for 1937. First place and $3,000, second place, $500. In addition, an award of $250 will go to the county in each of the 25 congressional districts of the state which makes the best record. No county winning one of the first three awards will be considered for the congressional district award.

Up To Counties.

Citizens would co-operatively with county commissioners to work along what lines the county will strive to win the awards. There will be no gesture on the part of The Constitution to tell Georgia counties how they should operate their governments for the year. The matter is entirely in the hands of the counties.

The award of each county will be studied and every county in the state is automatically entered in the competition by virtue of any improvement it makes during the year.

Judges will survey every county in the state before designating winners, and the awards will go to the counties making progress which is of greatest benefit to their citizens.

ARCHDUKE FRIEDRICH, WAR LEADER, PASSES

BUDAPEST, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The Archduke Friedrich, of Hapsburg, 80, one-time commander of the Austro-Hungarian army in the World War, died yesterday.

The Archduke, distant cousin of the former ruling family of Austria-Hungary, had been critically ill at his estate at Magyarvaros, near the Austrian border. He died quietly in his sleep.

His son, Archduke Albrecht, is a candidate of one section of monarchists for the Hapsburg crown.

The date was the earliest possible after the end of the Washington and London 1936 agreements denounced by Japan, December 27, 1934. The early warning program was regarded as a reflection of the British view that the pact gave other powers vital advantages in the past and that this now must be remedied quickly.

An admiralty spokesman emphasized that the new war craft, the Prince of Wales, to be started at Birkenhead, and the King George V, to be built at the Royal Dockyard, would mount 14-inch guns "regardless of what other nations may do."

He referred to a prediction by Jane's Fighting Ships Gazetteer that new United States battleships would carry 16-inch guns, despite the 1936 London agreement giving Japan until April 1 to decide whether to agree to restrictions of battleship armaments to 14 inches.

Regardless of future agreements, the first few days of 1937 at least will find no naval limitations—because the United States and France have not yet ratified the 1936 treaty.

The 1936 agreement restricted battleships to 14-inch guns—subject to Japanese consent—and limited the size of cruisers and aircraft carriers.

Under the terms of the London treaty, to continue of Article 10 of the now dying Washington treaty, there also will be no remaining restrictions to prevent a race to build up fortifications in the Pacific.

Britain early in 1937 also will start construction of seven cruisers, two aircraft carriers, 25 destroyers and 8 submarines.

For the new fiscal year beginning April 1, Britain already has asked bids for two additional battleships. She is considering also the desirability of constructing 10 more cruisers.

To further increase naval strength, Britain retained five overseas cruisers by invoking the escalator clause of the London treaty, but these are to be used as anti-aircraft ships and will not help in attaining the goal of 70 cruisers regarded by the government as the minimum for security.

Britain also decided to retain 40,000 tons of overseas destroyers, with Japan and the United States matching the tonnage in destroyers and submarines.

Britain has ordered a personnel increase of 3,500 officers and men to bring the naval total to 97,802.

The ultimate expenditure for this program is set at 187,000,000 pounds, about $935,000,000.

BRITAIN WILL LAUNCH WORLD'S NAVAL RACE ON NEW YEAR'S DAY

Keels for Two Great New Battleships Will Be Laid.

LONDON, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Great Britain will start the world's naval armament race New Year's Day by laying keels for two great new battleships.

The early limitation treaties expire at midnight tomorrow and the next day 25,000-ton war craft will be started to add to the world's greatest tonnage of 1,222,164.

(France, Japan, the United States, Italy, Germany, Russia and even the small powers) enlarged their naval programs last year.

The date was the earliest possible after the end of the Washington and London 1936 agreements denounced by Japan, December 27, 1934. ### Counties Join Enthusiastically In Progressive Awards Contests

Letters Indicate Offer By Constitution Is Awakening New Spirit of Civic Pride Among Citizens in All Parts of State.

Following are some of the letters, messages and editorial comment received in connection with the $7,500 Atlanta Constitution Progressive Government Awards for 1937:

Baker County.

"Editor Constitution:

"Baker county is out to win one of the prizes offered by The Constitution for the county making the most progress in 1937.

"Citizens of this county feel as if they are already blessed with many natural advantages and with these assets, they should be able to capitalize on them in an impressive manner.

"A county-wide meeting will be held shortly to discuss plan of operation, and city officials as well as county officials are entering the campaign in a spirited manner, determined that some part of the prize money will be won by the county.

"Keep your eye on Baker county."

(Signed) "JOHN CROUCH,"

"Editor Baker County News."

Hall County.

"Greatly pleased to see the forward step taken by your great newspaper to encourage the county governments in their efforts for better government and better living."

"Hall county's hat is in the ring, and you can expect the utmost from us in our efforts to benefit the citizens of this county. We will fight a good fight along the lines you suggest, and expect to win."

(Signed) "GLENN McCONNELL,"

"Chairman, Hall County Com."

Editorial from Savannah Morning News:

"Chattanooga has a chance to win $3,000 by making the greatest improvements in its county government during the year. The county is the 13th Georgia county making improvements in county government during the year which will bring the greatest benefit to their citizens. Thus there is a double incentive for entering into the competition. Not only do winners share in the cash prize, but their citizenry undoubtedly will profit manifold through the improvements inaugurated. It, therefore, behoves all who take an interest in efficient management of county affairs to put their wits to the work of county officials for beneficial improvements. The second award is to be $1,000 and the third award $500. The sum of $250 will be awarded in addition to the county in each of the 10 congressional districts of the state making the most progress in behalf of its citizens."

"Winners of any of the first three awards will not be considered for district awards."

"The Constitution deserves commendation for launching the movement. It is a contest in which no entrant can lose because whatever success is achieved, regardless of shipments of Wilhelmshaven and Kiel working overtime in their efforts to build Germany's sea forces up to the limit of approximately 420,000 tons fixed by the Anglo-German treaty of June 18, 1935.

That is his contribution to the world naval race of 1937, for which the starter's gun will sound with expiration of the London and London-Lyon treaties.

Direct termination of those pacts mean no new freedom for Germany.

In the present phase of sea power competition Hitler's goal is the tonnage permitted by his accord with Great Britain.

When he reaches that goal naval authorities believe he will have power in the world. At the present rate of building the Nazi leader will be ready for more bargaining with other powers long before 1942, when the 1938 tri-power agreement between the United States, Great Britain and France is scheduled to expire.

"The Constitution deserves commendation for launching the movement. It is a contest in which no entrant can lose because whatever success is achieved, regardless of air forces, and it only remains for details to be filled in and money voted.

Informers observers estimated today the Soviets have between 150 and 250 submarines.

With a growing merchant marine and naval competition throughout the world, the Soviets want to obtain as soon as possible heavy warships capable of defending their commerce and driving off attacks against their far-flung coastline.

Already three 2,000-ton battleships and two airplane carriers have been laid down.

Other construction under way includes three 2,000-ton cruisers, 12 600-ton torpedo boats and 14 submarines. This will bring Hitler's U-boat fleet up to 35 units.

DUKE TO BOLSTER NAVY AS OLD TREATY EXPIRES

ROME, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Expiration of the Washington naval treaty tomorrow midnight will give Minister of the Navy Benito Mussolini the freedom he needs to put weight on the Italian navy.

Limits imposed by the Washington Treaty of 1922 on capital ships for Italy virtually will be reached on completion of 35,000-ton battleships under construction since 1934. This figure is far below the capital ship tonnage of the British fleet, Italy's chief rival for Mediterranean supremacy.

Limitations off Friday it is understood 11 Duke's ministry of marine is drawing up plans for one or two more 35,000-ton warships, but their construction depends on finance and possibly getting assistance from abroad.

Italy has a lightweight navy. Its main reliance is placed on 10,000-ton 5,000-ton cruisers, fast, hard-hitting craft, but no match for the first line battleships of the British grand fleet or the French navy. If Duke therefore has seen the necessity of increasing the heavy side of his fleet, Italy has four battleships in commission.

Italy's 35,000-ton ships due for completion in 1938 will bring the capital ship tonnage to 183,110.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Dec. 30.—(UPI)—Gunfire from guards killed two men and wounded 10 others when negro convicts rebelled Monday at a state prison camp in Lake City.

Reports on the occurrence were received here today. Prison officials said quiet was restored in the camp, with Capt. T. C. The guards, Jones said, were injured slightly by the convicts.

ATLANTA, GA., DEC. 31, 1936.

AN INEFFECTIVE ACT.

The increased tension in European affairs resulting from the granting by the American State Department of a license to a New Jersey exporter to send a large shipment of airplane parts to Spain reveals the inefficiency of the neutrality act passed by the last congress.The act is so full of loopholes as to be practically worthless as an instrument to safeguard the United States from becoming embroiled in war. This President, in urging that a more airtight measure be enacted, impressed upon congress at the last session, and the present crisis reveals the correctness of his position then.Various reasons were responsible for the refusal of congress to enact a neutrality law with teeth in it.
The Italo-Ethiopian war was then at its height and pro-Italian sympathizers in the United States exerted organized pressure on members of congress in order that the shipment of war materials from this country to Italy might not be discontinued.
Strong lobbies represented some of the munitions makers and brokers. Additional pressure was placed upon congress by those who honestly felt that too strict a law might result in involving us in war instead of assuring our position as a neutral.The mistake of congress in refusing to pass the administration's neutrality act is forcibly impressed now by the critical condition in which the nation is placed through the insistence of a Russian-born, naturalized citizen upon his right to ship airplanes to Spain—the loophole taken advantage of being the failure of the present neutrality act to prohibit shipments to nations in which civil war, despite its external ramifications, is in existence.Not only is Exporter Cuse a native Russian, but his company has done business for a number of years with Amotorg, the purchasing agency of the Communist government of Russia in America. In view of Moscow's support of the Spanish government in the present fighting, it is impossible to overlook the significance of the fact that the only American exporter
who has sought a license to ship planes to the Communist forces in Spain has held close relations with the Soviet government.No wonder, in view of the ineffectiveness of the present neutrality act, that Senator Vandenberg has urged new neutrality legislation designed to offer real security against our becoming involved in the troubled affairs of Europe—not that President Roosevelt was been quick to ask that congress, as soon as it convenes, give him discretionary power to ban sales of munitions to the combatants in civil conflicts.There will be universal approval of the President's rebuke of Exporter Cuse for insisting upon a special service, is small. The late Victor H. Kriegshaber donated the
"Lighthouse" for the library for the blind and, in addition to supplying
the books, the federal government
provides free transportation for all sent to the blind outside of Atlanta.Miss Jessie Hopkins, librarian of the Carnegie library, suggests that the Lighthouse be placed under the direction and operated as a branch of the library. She estimates the finances necessary for maintenance of the Lighthouse next year at $2, 200. Certainly the suggestion should be given serious consideration by city council. There are many reasons why this step should be taken, and none has been advanced against it.Tip for the Sunday editor in search of something off the beaten track: A series by the Devil's Island

racial feeling and better understanding, both promoted by continuous educational campaigns, also contributed to the better showing."In Atlanta, Dr. R. B. Eleazer, educational director of the Commission on Interracial Co-operation, emphasizes that "the decrease in the number of lynchings is a distinctly encouraging thing, and is obviously due to the educational campaigns
being carried on by the churches, newspapers and various organizations.
Officers are responding to enlightened public opinion, and doing a great deal more to prevent lynchings."While it is regrettable that of the nine lynchings five occurred in Georgia, the record for the entire nation is such a distinct improvement as to be gratifying to those who stand for law and order as opposed to rule of the mob. Georgia must catch step with the advance made by other states in stamping out mob violence.Citizens of any community may safely rely upon the courts to deal justly with accused persons, and by orderly methods arrive at the guilt or innocence of those accused of offenses against law and order, and in the case of guilt fix the punishment to fit the crime, with carrying out
the law of the state.

A Hold-Up.

Four years ago in New York I was the victim of a holdup. On Thirty-fourth street, a dark and dingy alley, alongside the curbs and one of the two men in uniform in the driver's seat called out to me something that sounded like a question about a direction to take. I stepped quite close, as the driver, who was on the other side, had done the talking.
As I was near, he caught his words,
other man sitting nearest pulled out a gun and held it against my ribs.
"How much money you got? Slip it over here."I had $67.85 in my pocket. I handed it over. Then they said: "Is that all you got?" I said: "Yes, that's all.""Well, take this," said the gun-toter, "and keep your mouth shut." He handed me a package in which I found later six yards of broadcloth.
The concierge at 9 Rue St. Romain in Paris had a fine suit made out of that roll of goods. For, although police friends interceded to keep quiet on the ground that there never would be an end to the appearances in court, police stations and similar places.This morning early, coming home from a session with Max Reinhardt, the famous German producer, in the "Eighth Floor" on the Manhattan Opera House on January 4, I was not involved in a holdup, but I witnessed one. That is to say the tail-end of it. As I passed a restaurant on Forty-fourth street, two men slammed the door, raced out, and a thin man dashed out of the restaurant and began firing revolver in the direction of the two first men.
Instead of getting into the car, both stood there and whipping out revolvers, returned the fire. I did not know if I was such a good duck, nor did I realize how flat a man can make him by holding in his breath while standing in a shallow doorway.

One of the recent developments in the provision of books for the blind is "talking books." These "books" contain records which are made audible on special talking machines. These machines are furnished by the Library of Congress for the needy, adult blind and may be kept for an indefinite period.
Recently 116 "talking book" machines have been lent to this state.That there is practically no limit to the literature which may be made available to the blind by this means is seen by scanning a list of book titles which have, in recent months, led in popularity among the users of this type of "book." They include Anne Lindbergh's "North to the Orient," de Kruif's "Men Against Death," Dittmar's "Thrills of a Naturalist's Quest," "Very Good Jeeves" by Wodehouse, "The Magnificent Obsession" by Douglas and, inevitably, "Gone with the Wind" by Margaret Mitchell.Among the most popular of magazines published in Braille, the raised type by which the blind read through the sensitive touch of their fingertips, are the Braille Reader's Digest and the Braille Radio News.
A collection of verse from "The Silhouettes" column by Ralph T.
Jones, published daily in The Constitution, has also been done in Braille. Braille magazines and other publications may be read either at the library or taken home.The federal government has been exceedingly generous in supplying both "talking books" and books and magazines in Braille and thus Atlanta has been enabled to furnish the blind people of the city, and of Georgia, with supply of reading matter which they should have.The expense to the city, in this special service, is small. The late Victor H. Kriegshaber donated the
"Lighthouse" for the library for the
blind and, in addition to supplying
the books, the federal government
provides free transportation for all

BANKS WILL EXTEND NEW LOAN TO FULTON; COUNTY DEFICIT CUT

Budget for 1937 To Provide for Further Reduction in Indebtedness.

Atlanta clearing house banks yesterday agreed to lend Fulton county money, totaling 50 per cent of this year's county revenue, on which to operate during 1937. The loan, to approximate $2,000,000, will take effect March 10.

The county deficit was reduced by $200,000 during 1936, Commissioner George F. Longino said last night, bringing the deficit total to less than $200,000. Provisions will be made in the 1937 budget to reduce it still more, he said.

Bank representatives, meeting with the commissioners, said they had agreed on the manner in which county finances were being conducted and expressed themselves as "more than willing to grant a loan to the county in view of its excellent financial condition."

The county borrowed $1,900,000 for operating during 1936. April 1, $900,000 of this has been repaid, with the remainder to be paid today.

Under the new loan agreement with the banks, the 1937 loan will bear 1 1/2 per cent interest on tax anticipation notes and 3 per cent interest on bank warrants. This is the same interest rate paid in 1936.

The county operated on a balanced

Commissioners Longino and J. A. Ragsdale were sworn in by Ordinary Thomas H. Jeffries yesterday at the courthouse for new four-year terms. Both pledged themselves to policies of economy and efficient government. Witnessing the ceremony were Commissioner Ed Almand and Frank Fling, clerk of the commissioners.

T. J. STEWART NAMED TO SAVANNAH POSITION

Twenty-three years of service for the Central of Georgia railroad has brought T. J. Stewart, divisional passenger agent at Atlanta, promotion to the position of assistant general passenger agent at Savannah. Stewart started with the railroad at Savannah in 1913 as a stenographer. For the last 16 years he has lived in Atlanta as traveling passenger agent. He and his family will move to Savannah this week.

George W. Stradman, of Savannah, chief rate clerk in the passenger traffic department at that city, will succeed Stewart in his post. The promotions are effective January 1. The promotions were the result of the elevation of John W. Blount, of Savannah, to the position of general passenger agent succeeding Frederick J. Robinson, appointed to the newly created post of general agent, passenger traffic department.

LOWER MERCURY SEEN FOR CENTRAL STATES

Forecasters Predict End to 'May' Weather Prevalent Over Much of U. S.

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Winter started a comeback in the central states today and forecasters saw an end to the "May" weather prevalent over much of the country.

Lower temperatures began moving eastward after a 24-hour period in which the precipitation was record over an estimated 80 per cent of the country.

Forecaster C. A. Donnel said the area affected was unusually large.

Donel said although the colder weather would supplant the "abnormally mild" temperatures, there was no indication of a return to seasonably cold. The east central states may expect it by morning, he said, and eventually it should reach the east.

The north central states already had felt winter's uprising. Snow, ice and high winds caused considerable damage and hampered traffic. Chicago, however, had recorded 50 degrees yesterday. Prospects were for freezing weather by morning.

Minneapolis had considerable snow and ice.

An out-of-season tornado struck near Home, Kan., wrecked several farm buildings and injured two persons. It cut a path half-a-mile wide and two miles long.

A windstorm unrooted several business buildings in the village of Cumbeland, Iowa, and scattered debris over the streets. Canton, Ill., reported wind damage. Springfield, Ill., had an all-time December 30 high temperature of 62 degrees.

Parts of South Dakota were covered by a six-inch snowfall which blocked highways. At Aberdeen, S. D., and vicinity electric service was being restored, but telephone lines were out of commission. Only one toll line of 50 at Aberdeen was serviceable.

Two hundred Navajo Indians, caught by a snow storm on the desert near Gallup, N. M., were rescued by trucks. Fear for the safety of others was expressed.

Roosevelt's Kin Among Party in Perilous Expedition Over Andes.

By SURE PEREZ.

(Copyright, 1936, by United Press.)

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Dec. 30.—Andres Roosevelt, son of the United States' President, of the United States, tonight, revealed how five men, three of them Americans, risked their lives in a flight over the Andes to photograph Mount Chimborazo, an inactive volcano 20,700 feet above sea level.

The flight, called off at first by its backer, Cyril Von Baumann, of New York, because of the danger involved, was made today in a training plane lent by the Ecuadorian army, the Von Baumann-Roosevelt aerial expedition.

James Gray and Arthur Mulligan, American pilots, were at the controls of the machines which carried Roosevelt, Walter Blaschke, an Austrian, and Lieutenant Tobar, of the Ecuadorian army, four miles into the air to take motion pictures of the crater high in the country. Blaschke went as photographer and Tobar as observer.

The flight lasted 1 hour and 43 minutes. Both planes were equipped with oxygen apparatus.

Roosevelt said he was extremely pleased with the results of the flight over Ecuador's "grandfather volcano," whose cone never before had been viewed from above by a human being.

The crater is about 100 miles north of Guayaquil and slightly more than that distance south of the equator. It is noted for its grandeur and can be seen for miles around.

The flight lasted 1 hour and 43 minutes. Both planes were equipped with oxygen apparatus.

Roosevelt said he was extremely pleased with the results of the flight over Ecuador's "grandfather volcano," whose cone never before had been viewed from above by a human being.

The election had been in dispute since election day and had resulted in two recounts and two rulings by the ballot law commission.

Jenks was the winner in the first tabulation over Alphonse Roy, Democrat. A recount showed a tie vote, and a subsequent ruling gave Roy the election by 17 votes.

After the second recount the ballot law commission, ruling on disputed ballots, decided Jenks was elected by 10 votes.

EXPIRATION OF TREATY LEAVES THREE POWERS FREE TO ARM PACIFIC

Britain Seeks to Re-establish Fact on Naval Bases With Japan, U. S.

By CARROLL KENWORTHY.

(Copyright, 1936, by United Press.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—The Washington naval disarmament treaty will expire at midnight tomorrow without conclusion of any international arrangement regarding future status of fortifications and naval bases in the western Pacific, it was disclosed yesterday.

British overtures to Japan and the United States for a possible understanding on the bases have not led to any definite results. The Japanese government, according to press dispatches today, decided to delay reply to British proposals until at least the middle of January.

The United States had previously informed Britain it was interested in any exposition of the situation, but added its present commitment as to its position. The British suggested continuation of the present status with certain exceptions.

Forts, Naval Bases.

In view of the delays the three powers have absolutely free hand to develop forts or naval bases in their respective territories in the Pacific. Under the Washington treaty of 1922, now to expire, they were bound by Article XIX to maintain the status quo with regard to fortifications and naval bases which existed when the treaty was signed.

Practically, this meant that the United States would not develop new bases or forts west of Hawaii nor in the Aleutian islands; Great Britain would not expand its defenses east of Singapore; and Japan would confine its recent expansion to the three main Japanese islands or its Asiatic mainland possessions.

United States policy has been to avoid any steps that might start an international race in any category of defenses. At the same time it has made clear that it would maintain its relative international strength. This was indicated as fearing that the United States would not start fortifications in the western Pacific but would build promptly if other powers started such construction. Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson recently said that fortifications must be met by May.

It is thought unlikely that any major step will be taken by any power before January, but this is definitely known. Even then, negotiations might go on for a long period.

If the negotiations failed to prevent one or more of the powers from fortifying, then the United States would be confronted by questions of naval policy. These would include:

(1) whether to fortify Guam, a small naval station between Hawaii and the Philippines; (2) whether to continue naval bases in the Philippines; and (3) whether to establish a new base at Dutch Harbor in Alaska.

Projected improvement of lagoons at Midway and Wake islands, on the Pan-American air route to Manila, as proposed by the War Department Rivers and Harbors Board, would not be regarded here as a step toward fortification.

The proposed would be to facilitate air transport, and the military or naval value would be relatively small. Both islands lack shore forts or fleet facilities.

ATLANTA'S FIREMEN NOW RANKED FIFTH

City's Department, Under Parker, Termmed First in Georgia.

Atlanta has been awarded fifth place, for its fire prevention activities in the national competition held under auspices of the National Fire Prevention League, by Captain O. J. Parker, who was notified yesterday.

The Atlanta fire department also was judged best in the state, with Savannah second. More than 500 fire departments throughout the country competed, according to the notification of T. Alfie Fleming, contest committee chairman.

The Atlanta department won first award in 1934, and third place last year. Los Angeles was first award winner in this year's contest.

SNOWBOUND INDIANS RESCUED FROM STORM

GALLUP, N. M., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Indian service trucks opened a path to safety today for 300 snow-bound Navajo Indians, but fears were expressed other bands might still be marooned after yesterday's sudden blizzard.

With temperatures on eastern Arizona's Painted Desert hovering near zero, the rescue trucks struggled all night to open 25 miles of snow-covered road between Ganado trading post and the little settlement of White Ruins, Arizona.

Rescuers found the Indians huddled over the dying remnants of horses, their stock of food almost exhausted. They had held a "fire dance" on the high mesa.

The flight lasted 1 hour and 43 minutes. Both planes were equipped with oxygen apparatus.

ROMANCE, PREFERRED

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

INSTALLMENT XXIII.

There were so many people there she could distinguish not one friendly face. The large room was a splash of moving color. Trains skinned over the rugs and diamonds caught the light. People seemed to have much to say and were saying it with gesticulations. Arlen saw the dour face of the butler with a tray of drinks and felt grateful for one familiar face. She left Toby and went to Louise's boudoir, put her coat on the bed, took the orchid from the coat, and pinned them on her dress. When she caught sight of herself in the mirror, her eyes were scared and large. It would not do to look like a schoolgirl at her first party when Christa was there.

Thinking she must steel herself to face Christa, Arlen left Louise's boudoir. She saw Richard Borden looking at her with a surprised expression.

"I want very much," Jake said. "I want to do that. I want to marry you. He's kind and he loves me. Oh, Renny," she looked up, "I lied to you! I told you we could manage... but we can't. He's never sold a play and we're terribly poor. I can't bear to be poor again. I don't deserve anything. I lied to you because of my pride."

He touched her shoulder. "Is that Christa? I thought something terrible had happened to you. Will it make you any happier if I make a settlement on you?"

"I want very much," Jake said.

"Christa, I knew something was worrying you. I want you to be happy. It's nearly 12. Don't you think it would be better for us to begin our new year and our new life out there with the others dancing?"

"Wait a minute. I'll open my jewel box compact she dabbed powder on her nose, and blushed her mouth to a deeper crimson.

"Hello!" he said. "I suspect that half the people here weren't invited. I saw Toby but I couldn't get to him. Fanny didn't come, did she? That's odd. There's the music. Shall we dance, Arlen? This party will probably get very dull and we'll all go to the hotel and blow horns and kiss other men's wives and have a delightfully childlike time."

Dancing in Richard's loose embrace, she saw many of Louise's friends. Mary Albert, petite and blonde, dancing with her round little husband. She saw sleepy Mrs. Georges dancing with a man at last six inches shorter than she was. She saw Louise, beautiful in gold lace, passing from one group to another. The excitement of giving this party would not last the same nervous state she had been in month ago. Toby was cornered between two women with faces as withered and as brilliantly painted as Fanny's. Then Arlen saw Renny and knew that the woman with him had had her as Allison's mother.

Over Richard's shoulder she saw Arlen and Christa knew Arlen because it was Toby with whom she was dancing. It was as if suddenly a photograph took every one else from the room and Arlen and Christa were dancing for no other reason than to give her the opportunity to dissect the girl. Christa had a mind for small details. She studied Arlen critically—from the sandals that moved in time with Toby's patent leather to the top of her bright head. Arlen was probably the youngest person in the room and the simple gown of silk and hair made her Christa thought, vulgarly conspicuous. More than that, Arlen danced with such professional grace it was enough to make the others stop dancing to look at him.

That Arlen looked young and fresh drew no admiration from Christa. To her it showed a sad lack of the richer experience of life. Arlen, she hated now, was the girl she had seen in her round childish face when she was in her teens. The year in Paris, the late hours, the weariness, the discontent and uncertainty had pointed her face, bringing out the high arch of her cheekbones which, artfully rouged, gave bewitching foreign effect.

Jealousy warned her. What had she given up everything in a fit of nobility? That girl dancing with Toby would have everything—even her daughter. Christa felt no maternal jealousy but an unreasoning jealousy that any one should possess what belonged to her. It had been foolish of her to come here and offer her weariness, her eyes that had cried for days, and her hate for herself that she could not offer them for comparison with the youth and grace of this girl in silver.

"Renny, I must see you alone."

"Certainly. We'll go into Richard's study."

In the study she stood over the fireplace and folded her arms. Her red mouth was a straight grim line. There were blue circles beneath her eyes, and Renny was sure she was clasping her arms for control.

She broke down in a spurt of tears as she heard the words and the gentle words he said.

"When is it?" he asked. "Don't

"I was hungry."

FIREMEN'S BOARD RESCINDS ITS ACTION RETURNING MAYFIELD

Body Votes 5 to 3 to Refuse Reinstatement; 2 Other Pleas Refused.

Former Fire Captain John Mayfield, who recently was reinstated as a supernumerary, was out of a job again last night when the board of firemen rescinded its action of a month ago. It was known Mayfield's reinstatement was not favored by Mayor-elect Hartsfield.

On motion of Councilman C. M. (Mac) Bolen, the board last night voted five to three to drop Mayfield from the active supernumerary list. He was to be reinstated if he was discharged a year ago on charges which developed after his wife was acquitted of the murder of Mrs. Lucille Dixon, whom she said was the "other woman."

Fire Chief O. J. Parker reported an excellent fire record for the fire department, estimating the fire loss at $250,000 and the per capita loss at 84 cents, which were the approximate figures in 1935. The number of fires upon which losses were paid dropped this year from 355 in 1935 to 288, and the number of runs decreased from 3,599 to 3,556.

Reinstatement applications of B. L. Reynolds and K. G. Taylor were denied on the recommendation of the chief. Reynolds was discharged for drunkenness and Taylor for another offense.

Councilman Bolen, Councilman Howard Haile, Councilman John Marler, Alderman John W. Ball, and Councilman W. M. Sutton, chairman, voted to rescind Mayfield's reinstatement, while Mayor Pro Tem. Ellis Barrett, Councilman Howard McCallum and Alderman Farris Mitchell voted to retain him.

Chief Parker was authorized to designate Fireman Lamar Fain as inspector of fire hydrants, and Harry Green was elevated from the supernumerary list to the regular force to fill a vacancy.

Local treatment is advised as a helpful aid in acne cases, and for more than 40 years the ingredients of Resinol have been found effective.

The Train Is the Perfect Place To Spend New Year's Eve

It seems the smart thing to do. I mean, getting on the train tonight at 6 o'clock and starting out for New Orleans.

The youngsters across the street will feel rather badly about it. I dislike ruining their New Year's eve celebration. I won't be there trying to sleep when they set the cannon crackers off just outside the window. And I will be safe in a lower, rumbling along through Louisiana at 3:30 o'clock on New Year's morning when a friend calls up just to pass the time of day and ask why I was not down at Joe's house for the New Year's eve party.

The only thing sad about it is, that when the midnight noise crashes out to the sky and wakes Miss Virginia, I will not be there to walk the apartment with her until she sleeps again. It's a little bad for Miss Virginia's mamma. But then, duty is a stern taskmaster. What was it Robert E. Lee said about duty? Something.

Yes sir, I think it's a great idea.

When they start setting off the firecrackers on Canal street, I will be in a quiet, air-conditioned Pullman.

When the celebrating crowd goes pounding down the hotel corridors blowing horns and banging on doors, the clicking wheels will be singing a lullaby.

I think it's a great idea. Spending New Year's eve on the train is just about perfect. Not a single firecracker, not a single dance orchestra, not a single noisemaker, Porter, my bag. Let's roll down to that Sugar Bowl game. And make that 7:30 call a calm one.

THE CULTURAL FROWN.

Post-season football games are getting the cultural frown in New York at the National Collegiate Athletic Association where the coaches and faculty men are assembled.

There is a lot to say on either side. But regardless of who is wrong or right, the public evidently thinks the post-season football crowd is correct.

Tomorrow happens to be the start of the good year 1937. And in two concrete stadia there will be assembled some 120,000 citizens who will be engaged in yelling their figurative heads off and taking a few swigs from bottles to keep out the chill, or to supply new lung power. No one is quite agreed on that subject.

The strength of the post-season football promoters lies in the fact the public like their shows.

If the Cuban show up for the football show at Havana tomorrow in any large number, and if the Miami Orange Bowl is crowded, the remaining "bowl" contests may run the post-season football crowds of January 1, 1937, to 200,000 or more.

And since football is the big money-maker for the college athletic associations; and since they properly make as much as they can to sustain their athletic program, it will be a bit difficult to oust the post-season game.

They make money for the college athletic tills and they supply the promoters with financial velvet.

Which makes the post-season game many friends.

COACHES DEPLORE.

It is interesting to note that football coaches, seeking to reduce gambling on football games, have at last seen the beam in their own eyes.

One of the coaches, at the national convention in New York, asked that coaches quit selling their win and lose selections to newspaper syndicates. It was his opinion this was on "the borderline" of aiding gambling.

This was putting it rather mildly. It is several yards over the borderline, being not only an encouragement and aid to gambling, but an open invitation to wager. The man who should know more than anyone else is putting his choices on the line.

The whole idea of coaches writing for newspapers is something of a syndicate racket. It has lost coaches more friends than losing games. The coach who aids his opinions about his rivals in the papers inevitably must injure some feelings even though the opinions are very much of the milk-and-water variety.

If his team loses the alumni begins to ask for more victories and less newspaper and magazine articles.

Harry Kipke, speaking out in meeting yesterday, admitted his writing had lost him more prestige than the financial reward was worth.

Two years ago Michigan students paraded wearing signs: "Give us more victories and fewer magazine articles."

Few coaches write their own stuff. Most of them employ a "ghost" to put down the words. The articles never read as if the coach wrote them.

The alumnus who reasons that if the coach put in the hours he spent with his article on plays the result might be better, has a rather sound argument.

The coach is being frowned on by faculty men because the faculty man rather resents the salary paid the coach. He resents this every month when he gets his check. That is, he does if he is in a state where checks are made out.

One southern college recently was placed on probation by the National Association of Colleges because the football coach was being paid and the faculty members were several months in arrears.

The coaches would be wise if they placed restrictions on themselves.

The conferences would be wiser if they aided the coaches by making rules prohibiting their coaches from working.

The writing business might as well be left to those in it. It won't be any worse.

Georgia's Wild Life Luring to Visitors

By the Associated Press.

The value of an abundant supply of game and fish in Georgia has been proved by a recent letter received by Zack Crayce, state game and fish commissioner.

Crayce received a letter from E. E. Waldo, New Orleans, La., who is interested in verifying the fact that Georgia's coastal section still contains wild animal life such as quail, deer and turkey.

The Louisiana hunter stated that he was interested in changing his residence, and he had heard so much about Georgia's game and fish that he was seriously considering the purchase of a home somewhere in Georgia's coastal section where he could enjoy good hunting and fishing.

The purpose, House said, was to attempt to restock the county with these types of game. He said land owners would agree to the proposal.

Game and Fish Commissioner Zack D. Crayce took the proposal under advisement. He has power to act by executive order.

House also said there was a tract of 22,000 acres in the western section of the county which the owners desired to close indefinitely as a game preserve.

COACHES DECIDE TO DECLARE WAR ON GRID WAGERS

Gambling on Games Is Called Serious Menace at N. C. A. A. Meeting

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(P)—Warned of the "serious menace" of professional gambling on college football games, the American Football Coaches' Association decided today to probe its strength and determine definite steps to curb any threat of wagering evils.

After being elected unanimously as the association's new president, Michigan's Harry Kipke, announced he would name a special committee soon to study the gambling situation and report to the 1937 meetings.

This committee will investigate alleged activities of professional gamblers, some of whom are said to have established contacts at many large college games as well as the growth of foot ball pools.

Gus Dorais, veteran Detroit coach and one-time teammate of Knute Rockne, at Notre Dame, brought the subject of gambling dangers before the convention in his report as chairman of the committee on public relations. In addition to the committee, Dorais said:

GREAT INCREASE.

"We who are responsible for the integrity and the moral well-being of football are confronted with a serious menace. The increase in gambling on our games in the last year has been phenomenal. Professional gamblers have interested themselves in this way. I have been informed more money was wagered last season on football than on horse racing."

"When professional big-time gamblers interest themselves in the results of our games, it is necessary to tell you men what might happen. Football always has been played on the square and the responsibility rests on us to see that it continues to be played that way."

Coaches privately conceded the greater gambling on football games has developed risks proportionate, though they were nearly unanimous in agreeing that the result would be "staggering."

Dorais did not touch on the controversial subject of "picking winners," in which a number of the coaches participated through newspaper syndicates, but the question of the ethics involved was raised in a report to the convention by Bob Higgins, of St. Louis.

Higgins' report made no recommendations but merely asked whether the coaches, in making public predictions on the outcome of games, were helping to foster gambling interest.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association already has on record as condemning this activity by coaches, many of whom feel it is a legitimate by-product of their profession.

STAGGERING TOTAL.

Many coaches challenged the broad statement that wagering on football games compared with the amount of money bet on horse races, but they agreed the total would be "staggering."

Dorais did not touch on the controversial subject of "picking winners," in which a number of the coaches participated through newspaper syndicates, but the question of the ethics involved was raised in a report to the convention by Bob Higgins, of St. Louis.

FRONT AND BACK.

The coaches informally approved the idea of a rule making it mandatory for players to wear jerseys with numbers both front and back.

Kipke named to succeed D. O. (Tuss) McLaughlin, of Brown, as president of the office with the following slate: First vice president, Harry Stuhldreher, Wisconsin; second vice president, Lou Little, Columbia; third vice president, A. N. (Bo) McMillin, Indiana; secretary-treasurer, W. H. Cowell, New Hampshire; trustees, H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, Princeton; Elmer Layden, Notre Dame, and Madison (Matty) Bell, Northwestern.

Little was re-named chairman of the coaches' rules committee for 1937 by President Kipke. Little also will lead the advisory group of four coaches which will sit with the National convention committee next March. Others in this group are Ray Morrison, Vanderbilt; Jimmy Phelan, Washington, and Francis Schmidt, Ohio State.

L. S. U. QUOTED 1 TO 4 FAVORITE OVER BRONCOS

Odds on Bengals Likely To Be Reduced By Game Time.

By Kenneth Gregory.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 30.—(P)—Louisiana State's Tiger football team is favored to turn back the challenge of the Bronchos of Santa Clara in the Sugar Bowl on New Year's Day.

Available information on betting odds shows the players Bengals at 1-to-4 odds two days before the game. For those who liked the bucking Bronchos the bookies were laying 11 to 5.

By the dawn of the New Year, however, it was considered likely the odds in favor of Coach Bernie Moore's two-time Southeastern conference champion and only major undefeated team performing in post-season games was wagered last season on football that would be sharply reduced.

Reports from Houston, Texas, where the Bronchos were sent through a long workout today before departing for a game in the New Orleans area, said Coach Lawrence (Buck) Shaw's gridironers were in top shape and ready for one of their best efforts.

FINE SHAPE.

The Louisiana squad ran through another lengthy conditioning drill and dummy scrimage at Baton Rouge and said its team was in fine physical and mental condition.

New Orleans' weather bureau sounded a note of cheer for the teams and the 42,000 fans expected to witness the holiday classic—the third annual Sugar Bowl battle. Tulane defeated Colgate 20 to 14 in the inauguration in 1934 and Louisiana State lost to Texas Christian 19 to 17, 3 to 2, in a contest marred by a deluge of rain.

The probability is that New Year's Day will find conditions ideal for the weather bureau announced. Thursday will be partly cloudy and colder. Rain in the New Orleans area tonight was expected to herald a change to clear skies.

Indications pointed to a great battle between two strong lines and hard-running and flashy passing backfields.

The National's second team, which had the nation's major teams and limited opponents to 32 points, Santa Clara scored 119 points and limited the opposition to 22.

ONLY A TIE.

The only blot on L. S. U.'s record was a 10-10 tie by the Tigers, a game in which the Tigers had eight times within the 10-yard line. Santa Clara, after winning seven straight games, lost its final battle to Texas Christian, 9 to 0.

The season's records of the teams follow:

Santa Clara 27, Portland 0; Santa Clara 13, Stanford 0; Santa Clara 0; San Francisco 28, Santa Clara 20; St. Jose 0; Santa Clara 12, Auburn 0; Santa Clara 19, St. Mary's 0; Santa Clara 13, Loyola (Los Angeles) 6; Santa Clara 0, Texas Christian 19.

Louisiana State 20, Rice 6; Louisiana 6, Texas 6; Louisiana 47, Georgia 7; Louisiana 13, Mississippi 0; Louisiana 19, Arkansas 7; Louisiana 19, Vanderbil 0; Louisiana 12, Mississippi State 0; Louisiana 19, Auburn 6; Louisiana 93, Southwestern Louisiana 0; Louisiana 33, Tulane 0.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 30.—(P)—Arkansas' Southwest conference champions, led by a pair of ace forwards—Lockard and Gilliland—defeated the University of Tennessee Volunteers, Southeastern conference champions, 42 to 34, in the basketball chapter of the Sugar Bowl football tournament.

Taking command shortly after the start of the contest, the Razorbacks held a 22-to-9 advantage at the half-time intermission and pulled away in the closing minutes to triumph over the Tennesseeans.

BITSY TO PLAY FRANK PARKER IN TITLE TEST

Bryan Masters Defending Champion; Buxby Outclassed, 6-1, 6-2.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 30.—(P)—A new Sugar Bowl champion was assured here this afternoon when Bryan Grant, of Atlanta, Ga., defeated the defending champion, Arthur Hendrix, of Lakeland, Fla., in straight sets, 6-3, 8-6, in the semi-finals at the New Orleans Country Club this afternoon.

The match was bristling with good tennis and Grant was in complete control except for a few moments in the second set. It was a baseline duel with Grant being the more steader of the two.

Grant took a lead of three games in the first set before Hendrix was able to break through for a couple of games. But the diminutive Atlantan put on steam to run the match out with the loss of only one more game, which Grant won.

ALTERNATE GAMES.

In the second set they divided the first four games alternately but then Grant stepped out into a lead of 5 to 2 in games and was leading 30-15 in the next game when Hendrix called it a day. The defending champion put on a burst of good tennis that found Grant helpless. He took four games in a row to forge ahead at 6-5 only to have Grant come back and run out the set on him.

Grant will meet Frankie Parker in the finals tomorrow.

Parker easily named Martin Buxby, of Miami, 6-1, 6-2. His speedy court coverage, his sizzling forehand and powerful volleys proved too much for the Miami youngster who had scored two surprise victories in the first two rounds of play. Buxby made a gallant fight against his high-ranking opponent but could win only one game in the first set, the second, and two in the second set, the third and fourth.

CLOSE BATTLE.

Overseas professionals in a close battle between Grant and Parker in the semi-finals. Grant, playing his usual wait-and-see baseline game, had been extremely steady in every match. Parker's speed and powerful volleys, coupled with a sizzling forehand stroke, may prove troublesome for the Atlantan, but it was believed Grant's fine court coverage will give him the margin.

In the doubles, McDiarmid and Hendrix advanced to the finals by eliminating Hall and Parker, in a close battle, 13-11, 7-5.

The other semi-final match was not completed because of darkness. When a half hour later the brothers of New Orleans, Bill and Ernie, were leading Buxby and Vernon Marcum, of Lakeland, Fla., 8-6, 4-2.

MAROONS LOSE STAR HALFBACK

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 30.—(P)—Mississippi State might be the surprise boys' series of a star halfback, Victor Dixon, stricken with appendicitis.

Taken to a hospital soon after the Maroons arrived for the New Year's Day game against Duquesne, Dixon was operated upon tonight. He was reported as resting well after the surgery.

The Maroons hurried from the train to an ultra-secret practice while Duquesne, their opponents in the Orange Bowl on New Year's Day, ran plays with a tentative starting lineup.

Major Ralph Sasse, the Mississippi State coach, held his charges to the scene of the battle and appeared to be much miffed when the men shooed him away to a nearby baseball diamond. The coach ordered all outsiders from the field and declined to permit the players even to pose for pictures.

Coach John "Little Clipper" Sasse, who was with his brother, Brumbaugh, halfback from practice and announced William Dillon would take his place on the first team. Brumbaugh has been suffering from tonsillitis.

The Capital City Country Club is installing a sprinkling system which will maintain the entire golf course in perfect playing condition regardless of drought which each summer affects the play on Atlanta's courses. At the left may be seen

Green Grass Will Grow All Around—Beckett

Capital City Course Sees Big Pipes Go Down to Thwart Drouth.

By Ralph McGill.

The green grass will grow all around next summer at the Capital City Club course, says Howard Beckett, club professional.

The new sprinkler system, which is an innovation in the south, is almost half installed in so far as the main pipe line is concerned.

Beckett yesterday said the work could be completed in another 30 days if good weather prevailed. The contract time was for completion within 75 days after December 10.

The sprinkler system is so arranged it will keep the turf in good shape over all the fairways and greens. A complete sprinkling every night is planned.

For these, 78, or 45 per cent, involved high school players. Sandlot football accounted for 49 deaths, or 28 per cent; athletic club football 26, and college football, 21.

College football alone has shown a comparative steady decline during the past four years. The survey, eight college fatalities were reported in 1931 as against one during 1936. Sandlot football contributed 11 of this year's deaths and athletic club football two.

NOT INCLUDED.

Deaths not directly attributable to football, such as those due to infection or of pneumonia after injury, were not included in the survey.

Eastwood's report developed a number of interesting points. The peak for injuries, as well as fatalities, is reached early in the season and then steadily declines. Thirteen per cent of the fatalities in the last six years have occurred in the fourth week in October, 10 per cent in the third week in November, and 11 per cent in the second week in November. These three weeks thus account for 34 per cent of the total.

Injuries, Eastwood said, tend to occur either in the first or fourth periods, indicating overzealousness or fatigue are important factors.

Backs are most frequently injured, then centers, then ends. Head injuries caused most fatalities. More than half of these injuries were due to a fall at a meeting of the club's membership last summer.

These three weeks thus account for 34 per cent of the total.

Injuries, Eastwood said, tend to occur either in the first or fourth periods, indicating overzealousness or fatigue are important factors.

Backs are most frequently injured, then centers, then ends. Head injuries caused most fatalities. More than half of these injuries were due to a fall at a meeting of the club's membership last summer.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 30.—The Straussians basketball team, representing Atlanta Young Judea, defeated the New Orleans entry, 24 to 12, in the semi-finals here today. They meet Birmingham for the championship this afternoon.

of these, 78, or 45 per cent, involved high school players. Sandlot football accounted for 49 deaths, or 28 per cent; athletic club football 26, and college football, 21.

College football alone has shown a comparative steady decline during the past four years. The survey, eight college fatalities were reported in 1931 as against one during 1936. Sandlot football contributed 11 of this year's deaths and athletic club football two.

NOT INCLUDED.

Deaths not directly attributable to football, such as those due to infection or of pneumonia after injury, were not included in the survey.

Eastwood's report developed a number of interesting points. The peak for injuries, as well as fatalities, is reached early in the season and then steadily declines. Thirteen per cent of the fatalities in the last six years have occurred in the fourth week in October, 10 per cent in the third week in November, and 11 per cent in the second week in November. These three weeks thus account for 34 per cent of the total.

1 KILLED, 10 INJURED AS CHRISTMAS DANCE ENDS IN FIRE TRAGEDY

Prominent Alabama Women Severely Burned as Costumes Are Ignited.

SELMA, Ala., Dec. 30.—(AP)—A Christmas tragedy of fire that turned a gay masquerade dance into a night of horror claimed one life today and left 10 prominent Selma matrons in hospitals suffering from severe burns that might prove fatal.

A tiny match head flew off its stem, struck and dropped like a death-dealing torch into the flammable and cotton costumes of members of the exclusive Phantom Club as they crowded together in a dressing room awaiting the grand march that was to open the dance.

Dies From Burns.
Mrs. T. G. Gay, 25, wife of a young lawyer, died early today from her burns, and Mrs. Alston Koch, Mrs. Tyler Wilby Cleveland, Mrs. Bernard Reynolds and Mrs. Clarence Agee were in a critical condition.

Others seriously but not critically burned were Mrs. Ed Smith, Mrs. Leaske Harris, Mrs. Richard Wil-iams, Mrs. William Craig, Mrs. Leon Rowan, Mrs. Arnold Stewart, and Mrs. James Rowell.

The women were wearing Russian costumes carrying out the motif of the Russian dance, and had gathered in the dressing room at the Selma Town and Country Club awaiting a signal from the orchestra before marching through a paper maché gate to join their partners and start the dance.

Costume Ignited.
Someone struck a match to light a cigarette and the match head fell off and landed in the lap of Mrs. Arnold Stewart and spread quickly to the other women as they rushed to her aid.

The men, in evening attire, heard the screams from the dressing room and dashed inside to find the costumes of the women in flames.

Evening coats were ripped off and used to fight the flames, and the costumes of the women were snatched off burning bodies, as several fell to the floor, writhing in agony. The tiny dressing room was a madhouse. The room was not damaged, except seared spots on the walls here and there where a tormented body had fallen against it trying to escape from the enveloping flames.

The victims, many almost nude, were hurried to Selma's hospital and some of the more severely burned remained in corridors throughout the night and a greater part of the day in their ruined formal evening dress. The men all received burns and blistered hands but none was seriously injured.

Atlanta Fights Flame.
Among the men burned in fighting

the flames was Frederick Coleman, of Atlanta.

The tragedy stunned this city of 22,000, and all social events at the country club were cancelled for the holiday season.

Club members had sympathized recently with Miss Irma Fowlkes, Phan-tom club president, whose husband had accidentally sent her to the hospital with an injured knee. From her cot early today she watched her pain-tor-tured fellow members placed on nearby beds.

The funeral of Mrs. Gayle will be held tomorrow. She leaves a baby daughter, not yet two years old.

end of the month.

D. R. AND AIDES WORK FOR EUROPEAN PEACE.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—(UPI)—President Roosevelt and his government worked frantically tonight to prevent this nation's neutrality crisis from becoming the spark that might explode the Spanish affaire with all Europe aflame with war.

In the meantime, Spain and Russia might be behind an attempt to ship American planes and motors to Spanish Loyalist forces caused government fears that some nations might choose to interpose the action as indication of America's "taking sides" in the conflict and thus upset peace efforts of governments trying to limit the scope of the civil war.

Confers With Officials.

Deeply immersed in the domestic problems which he must present to a new congress convening in six days, Mr. Roosevelt put them aside temporarily to confer with high legislative and executive officials in an attempt to solve what has become an international crisis.

The State Department, meanwhile, was almost hysterical in its attempts to convince the capitals of Europe that the legal loophole through which Robert Cuse, a New Jersey exporter, expects to ship $2,777,000 of planes and motors to Spain, does not exist.

President Roosevelt, and the government, while diametrically opposed to such action, cannot legally bar it.

A copyright dispatch in today's Washington Post hinted that Vimalert, the export company, had once handled a plane transaction for Amotorg, a Soviet Spanish agent in this country. This put official to digging back through the records of a six-year old house Communist investigation. They found testimony by Basil Delgass, former vice president of Amotorg, who testified that Vimalert sent 400 motors in 1929 that eventually found their way to Harry Secretary of War Harry Woodring then revealed that the War Department sold Vimalert 300 obsolete motors last January which may be the same intended for shipment to Spain.

Can't Stop Exports.

Russia is openly sympathetic with the Spanish government forces. Last any nation misinterpret the licensing as involved "connivance" of the United States government, the State Department called the Paris embassy explaining that it was powerless to bar exports to the叛逆。

It pictured Cuse as a man who refused to be dissuaded by his government's ideas of patriotism and then gave this clue to possible action by this government to stop the shipment.

"The department sincerely regrets that it cannot not interfere with American citizens with this government's strict non-intervention policy."

"In view of the fact that most of the airplanes and airplane engines and parts composing the shipment licenses for which have been granted as mentioned above, are not new manufacture and are therefore overhauled and reconditioned, it is not expected that any of this shipment will leave the United States during the next two months and that the entire shipment will not be completed before six months from now."

Law of Embargo.

The State Department believes the chief executive should be given wide enough discretionary power so that he can adapt neutrality to whatever emergency arises. The vice president of the port of Chicago and therefore has a compelling argument in the present situation.

Mr. Roosevelt expressed the idea at his press conference yesterday by pointing out that the President of the United States is in authority 365 days a year. The Spanish civil war will break out while congress was in recess.

Still another factor in the complicated situation is the huge foreign investment in the United States, now estimated at $7,000,000,000. hampered by United States neutrality restrictions, foreign nations are still able to cash their securities and draw on their gold to buy food or other materials. The permanent law probably will try to control this foreign investment.

Urge Presidential Power.

The group of senators who served his munitions committee share his views in varying degrees. They emphasize the kind of neutrality that takes effect automatically whenever six months from now."

Law of Embargo.

The bills already had occurred to congressional leaders that possibly legislation could be passed quickly enough to prevent the motors from ever leaving the country.

Miss deGolian Makes Debut At Reception Given by Parents

Miss Martha Mana deGolian made her formal debut yesterday afternoon at a reception at which her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Eugene deGolian, entertained at Brookhaven, the Capital City Country Club, the guests including a limited number of society's married and unmarried engaged in the living room, assisted by the former's sons, Richard Littlepage deGolian and Midshipman Felix Eugene deGolian. They stood before a floral background formed of innumerable basket and bouquets of vari-colored flowers sent Miss deGolian by her hosts of friends and those of her parents.

The living room and ballroom in which the guests assembled were elaborately decorated with smilax and silvered pine trees on which myriads of red lights twinkled. The buffet tables were attractively decorated with plateaux of red roses and between each plateaux silver candelabra, in which red tapers gleamed, were arranged.

Mrs. deGolian wore a handsome gown of aquamarine blue satin trimmed in rhinestones. A bouquet of deep purple orchids graced her left shoulder.

Miss deGolian's beautiful debut gown was fashioned of silver-white lace posed over white satin. A bertha of the lace was the gown's only trim.

WAKE UP YOUR CIRCULATION!

Muscles that ride to work in trolley cars and elevators need exercise—and so does your lazy circulation. Put those muscles to work and their activity will arouse a sluggish blood stream and keep you feeling young.

The circulation slows up so gradually that one is unconscious of the changes that are taking place. You slow up, get a bit lazy, and become addicted to big easy chairs and solid comfort. The first thing you know, the old rocking chair has got you—and you'd rather sit around than get up.

Take a tip from that comfort-loving creature, the cat, and stretch to get the kinks out of your muscles and circulation. Tabby spends a good part of her nine lives curled up in some cushy spot by the fire, but her aye lines and stretching technique are something to admire—and to copy.

Start your day with a stretch, and getting up will be pleasanter. Before you drive yourself out of bed in the morning take a good long stretch from head to heels. Fling your arms straight up overhead and let the lower part of your body lie still while you turn over to first one side and then the other, with the upper part.

Then, sit up, straighten your back and tense the abdominal muscles, drawing them up and in. Relax, flex the knees and lift the buttocks off the bed until the body is in a straight line from knees to chest. This is a gentle way of forcing the blood into

Miss Duke Fete College Set at Tea

Miss Jessie McDonald Duke entertained 100 members of the college contingent at a beautiful tea on Tuesday at her home on Oxford road in Druid Hills.

The spirit of Christmas prevailed throughout the home in the effective decorations. Large poinsettias, poinsettias, and potted plants were arranged throughout the living room and the mirrors were outlined with greenery, interspersed with poinsettias. The tea table was covered with a lace cloth, veiled in green satin and centered by a large arrangement of narcissi with miniature red candles placed amidst the narcissi. ## Nine O'Clock New Year's Eve Ball Lures Prominent Visitors to City

By Sally Forth.

THE NEW YEAR'S EVE masquerade ball given this evening at the Piedmont Driving Club by those enthusiastic Nine O'Clockers will lure prominent visitors to Atlanta today to attend the festive event and to bid farewell to 1936 and herald 1937 with delight under auspicious circumstances. Knoxville will be represented by Mr. and Mrs. Tom Broadus and they will visit Betty and Gus Ashcraft in their new home on Fifteenth street. Mr. and Mrs. Francis Shackelford will motor here from Greenville, S. C., to visit Georgia and John Oliver on Seventeenth street and to attend the ball tonight. Mrs. Shackelford is pleasantly remembered as Kate Cooper who lived here before her marriage.

An interesting group of visitors who will attend the ball include Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sturdivant, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pittman Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Moses Brenson, all of Summerville. Mr. and Mrs. Sturdivant are former Atlantans, who continue to keep in touch with friends here and who take part in many social activities among their contemporaries. Mrs. Sturdivant being the former Elizabeth Phillips. Mrs. Pittman, the former Virginia Boyd, of Griffin, and Mrs. Brenson, the former Ruth Maddox, of Rome, recently moved to Summerville, and they with their husbands and the Sturdivants form a most congenial group. Each of the sextet has many friends in Atlanta, by whom they will be cordially welcomed at this evening's brilliant affair.

Celebrated visitors attending the ball will be Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Trotti, former Georgians who now reside in Hollywood where the former is among the leading playwrights in the movie capital. His lovely wife is the former Louise Hall, of Macon, and they will receive a cordial welcome from their friends here. Cornelie and Arthur Rylander, of Americus, will be with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Torrance, and will attend the festive party this evening.

Another former Atlantan who will be glimpsed among the dancers will be Anne Spalding who resides in New York but who makes Atlanta her headquarters during the Christmas season. She is visiting her mother and sister, Mrs. William Spalding and Elizabeth Spalding, of Washington, D. C., the guest of Dean Spratlin.

PRETTY Eloise Gresham will pack up her bags and her Christmas "sheers" and leave this week-end with Bob and Beverly Rogers Lortor for their home in Tulsa, Okla., where she will spend several weeks. Although she will miss the final debut parties here she will nevertheless be numbered among the popular and feted visiting belles in attendance at the mid-winter social events in the Oklahoma city.

At the conclusion of her visit there with the young Lortors, Eloise will return to Atlanta by way of New Orleans where she will be the guest of Mrs. John Thompson for some time. Sally can well imagine how charming Eloise will look this evening when she attends the Nine O'Clock's costume ball in a costume which bids fair to further accentuate the brunet loveliness of the charming debbie.

IT'S AN old New Year's custom to spend the last evening of the year with the one you love the best and Sally hears that a certain very prominent Atlanta doctor is going to adhere to the custom this evening, when he appears at a large ball with the young lady whom everyone says has won his heart. The man in question, from a Sheriff Foils Crowd in Dalton Case By Taking Men From Prison.

ROME, Ga., Dec. 30.—(P)—A tip-off mob was forming to seize two negroes held in jail here in connection with an attempt to make a human torch of a Dalton storekeeper.

Enabled Sheriff M. E. Horton to release the men before the vanguard of the crowd reached here early today.

Horton, after conferring with an superior court Judge Claude Pittman at Cartersville, sent the two prisoners from jail only 20 minutes before the first members of the mob arrived.

Later, about 10 o'clock, deputies took the men to undesignated points. By 2 o'clock, attacks of the jail said, six cars containing between 25 and 30 men cruised about the jail but the occupants made no attempt to enter the jail when spectators informed them the men had been removed.

The pair, booked as Frank Simpson, 46, and Zola Dillard, 32, was arrested in Dalton yesterday in connection with an attempt to burn Walter Schneider, Dalton merchant.

Horton said he had been informed Schneider identified the men as the ones who bound him, pouring kerosene over him and set fire to his store after he refused to turn his receipts over to them. Schneider escaped by rolling out a door.

Charges against the men were arrested. Simpson and Dillard were brought to Fulton county yesterday from Rome for "safe-keeping," and are now lodged in the tower, Fulton county officers stated last night.
